

Indigenous Coach Training Program Vision and Mission

The Indigenous Coach Training are committed to creating a safe space for learning. The foundation of this is acceptance, in other words to be, as much as possible, without judgement. We hold that the standards of confidentiality, having a beginner's mind, focus on the positive and connecting at a heart level will maintain this environment of exploration. We have a professional responsibility that honours the importance of respect and integrity.

As a provider of excellent coaching education, we promise to challenge our participants to be vulnerable and be real with themselves. From this space of authenticity, our faculty can offer meaningful and impactful coaching, directed by the structure of the core competencies that build and guide each conversation.

Our Values:

- Absolute belief that each person is whole, complete and resourceful.
- We encourage and support self-awareness, transformation and action.
- We honour the connection and contribution of our students.
- We are privileged to bear witness and partner with our students on their journey of learning.

The facilitators of the program will also align with the guiding curriculum of Seabird College which hosts this program. Seabird College is dedicated to teaching and learning. We believe that sound education rests on a commitment to a code of academic integrity that stresses the principles of honesty, trust, respect, fairness and responsibility.
